

New Editorial Board for JTOS

Ashok Shyam¹

Dear MOA Members,

This editorial is to welcome the new editorial board members who have joined the Journal of Trauma and Orthopaedic Surgery. Editorial board is life line of a journal. These are the people who make everything possible for the journal and the quality of the journal is defined by people on the editorial board

We are fortunate enough to have excellent academicians on the editorial board and I am hopeful that in coming days this will also reflect on the quality of the journal and the articles. Being on editorial board is a privilege but it is more than that. It is a great responsibility too. Responsibility of every article published in JTOS lies on the shoulders of each editorial board member along with the editor and I am sure the new editorial board is absolutely perfect to shoulder this responsibility.

One of the major issues that the editorial board faces constantly is about submission formats. There are still many authors who post their submissions without proper formatting the articles. It is my sincere request to all the prospective authors, on behalf of the editorial board and MOA, to read the authors guidelines carefully and also read articles that are published in older issues of JTOS, so as to get acquainted with the format of submissions and article preparation. This will greatly help the editors and the editorial board who can then focus on the the scientific content rather than the formatting of the articles. This will also avoid delays in publications and improve the quality of articles and overall quality of the Journal.

I again welcome the new editorial board and look forward to working in collaboration with each of them
